AAP's entry into state upends the landscape

AHMEDABAD: Long caught between two polarities, Gujarat's electoral field has expanded to include a third party with the Aam Aadmi Party challenging the ruling BJP as well as the opposition Congress that has lost ground but has significant presence.

Besides, the freebie versus welfare debate — over which challenger AAP and BJP have been sparring in the recent weeks — and the ruling party's main poll planks of Hindutva, 'double engine' growth and continuity in governance are likely to remain centrestage.

Though the poll schedule was announced on Thursday, the buzz for what will be a three-cornered contest got louder in recent weeks.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi and several Union ministers have been frequenting the state. Mr Modi was in Morbi on Nov 1 to review the situation after the bridge collapse. All eyes are on AAP chief Arvind Kejriwal as well as his party leaders who have made a high-decibel entry into the field, giving voters a third option in a state that has for decades been bipolar in its politics.

The poll is crucial for BJP, which has won six successive terms and aims to retain power in Mr Modi's home state, and for AAP, hoping a win will propel it to a pan-India political force, the third state in its bag after Delhi and a victory in Punjab in March this year.

The Congress, too, hopes to end its 27-year stint in the Opposition but has so far been quiet with its national leaders conspicuous by their absence. With leaders of various parties making a beeline for the state, cities and villages of Gujarat are dotted with banners and posters.

BJP's star campaigner Mr Modi has increased the frequency of his trips and addressed well-attended gatherings in the last few weeks.

It is the third and late entry into Gujarat's electoral field, the Kejriwal-led AAP, that is stirring interest with its aggressive campaigning and long list of attractive pre-poll "guarantees". The AAP is banking on "welfare", the fact it is a new alternative and its stress on day-to-day people issues to woo voters.

Congress is the unusually quiet. Mr Rahul Gandhi, who has been busy with his Bharat Jodo Yatra, has remained mostly absent.

Booth for lone voter; shipping container makeshift poll centre

New Delhi: In this Gujarat assembly polls, provisions have been made for over 200 electors of an island off the state's coast to cast their vote in a shipping container, saving them a long journey to the nearest polling station in Bharuch district. The shipping container as a makeshift polling station will be set up at Alibet in the Vagra assembly constituency of the district, Chief Election Commissioner Rajiv Kumar told reporters while announcing the poll schedule for the state. The polling station will have basic facilities such as drinking water. There was no government or semi-government facility available in the village which apparently made it difficult to set up a polling centre. In the Gir forest, a polling station will be set up for Baharatdas Darshandas at Banej.

Rajsthani Dalit man ends life over 'police inaction'

MANISH GODHA / Jaipur

A man committed suicide in Roopangarh area of Ajmer district on Tuesday. In his suicide note, Omprakash Raigar, 25, a Dalit from Nosal village, Kishangarh teshil, accused the police of giving in to political pressure and denying him justice.

Raigar, who hanged himself, blamed two police officers and a former sarpanch in his three-page note. "I feel ashamed that I could not save the dignity of my parents," he said.

He the police of diluting a report that he filed at Roopangarh police station alleging intimidation by some influential people in the village.

Raigar's note said that his father, Narayan, was collecting crops in his field on Diwali day when one Kishnamar Gurjar and his nephews, Kanaram and Nandram, got their sheep to graze in the field. When Rajgar opposed, the trespassers beat him with sticks. Rajgar escaped and when he returned with his family to confront the suspects, they were humiliated with casteist slurs.

Patients surge at OPDs as Delhi air quality remains 'severe'

NEW DELHI

Hospitals in Delhi are teeming with people suffering from cough, nasal congestion, shortness of breath and even asthma attacks as an eye-stinging smog blankets the national capital. With Delhi's air quality remaining 'severe', doctors advised a return to wearing masks to guard against pollution.

While forecasters on Wednesday predicted the air quality to improve due to stronger winds, Delhi's overall Air Quality Index (AQI) stood at 426 at 9.10 am. An AQI of above 400 is considered 'severe' and can affect healthy people and seriously impact those with existing illnesses. At Holy Family Hospital in Okhla, there has been a 30 per cent increase in such patients coming to out-patient departments, said Dr Sumit Ray, head of department of critical care.

Last year, the hospital had started writing 'pollution-related' in diagnosis in what was probably a first for a medical facility here. "There were two ICU (intensive care unit) patients for whom we wrote that diagnosis. For writing that diagnosis, you have to rule out several probable factors that could have triggered the illness. For the patients who are currently admitted, we will need a few more days to arrive at that diagnosis," Ray said.

Shedding light on the problems faced by patients, Dr Ashish Kumar Prakash, consultant (respiratory and sleep medicine) at Medanta in Gurugram, said they had been attending to patients complaining of cough, nasal congestion and breathing difficulty since Diwali. "Currently, I have 25 to 30 patients in my OPD with such conditions and the entire unit/department has approximately 50-75 cases in total. Patients suffering from respiratory illnesses such as COPD, asthma, and others are reporting acute exacerbations, an increase in symptoms such as coughing, dyspnea and acute nasal problems," he said.

Prakash said apart from worsening AQI, the change in weather was another factor behind a lot of the problems in patients with respiratory illnesses. "As the weather transitions to cold and breezy, the cold, dry air and sudden shifts in the weather can irritate the airways, causing one to produce more mucus and leading to exacerbations if the patients are not taking their medications properly," he said.

Army registers IPR of new combat uniform

NEW DELHI: The process for registration of the new Camouflage Pattern and Design of Improved Combat Uniform to establish ownership of Indian Army has been completed by the Controller General of Patents, Designs and Trademark.

The new Digital Pattern Combat Uniform for Indian Army soldiers was unveiled on 15 January 2022 (Army Day). The improved uniform has a contemporary look and functional design. The fabric has been made lighter, stronger, breathable, quick drying and easier to maintain. The uniform's uniqueness is evident with the inclusion of gender specific modifications for women's combat uniform. "The exclusive Intellectual Property Rights (IPR) of the Design and Camouflage Pattern now rests solely with the Indian Army, and therefore manufacturing by any vendor who is not authorised and will be illegal and is liable to face legal repercussions," said the Ministry of Defence on Thursday.

Indian Army can enforce exclusive rights to the design and can file infringement suits by way of a civil action before a competent court of law. Remedies against infringements include interim and permanent injunctions as well as damages. As part of the process of introduction of the new pattern uniform, a total of 50,000 sets have already been procured through Canteen Stores Department (CSD) and delivered to 15 CSD Depots (Delhi, Leh, BD Bari, Srinagar, Udhampur, Andaman & Nicobar, Jabalpur, Masimpur, Narangi, Dimapur, Bagdogra, Lucknow, Ambala, Mumbai and Khadki).

Paresh Maity's entire oeuvre to be exhibited from Nov 5

NEW DELHI

Showcasing his entire body of work of nearly 40 years, renowned contemporary artist Paresh Maity will hold India's "largest" solo exhibition here from November 5. After opening at Bikaner House on November 5, the major multi-genre show will travel to four metro cities — Delhi, Mumbai, Kolkata and Bengaluru — over the course of five months, bringing together the various art forms that Maity has explored during his artistic journey.

Represented by Delhi-based Art Alive Gallery, Maity's solo exhibition, 'Infinite Light', will also be showcased at the India Habitat Centre (IHC) from November 11 onwards. The vast repertoire of artworks span a time frame from the 1990s to Maity's most recent creations, combining elements of paintings, large scale installations, sculpture, theatre, and soundscape.

Talking about the show, curatorial advisor and poet Ranjit Hoskote said that the exhibition maps Maity's "investment in painting, drawing, sculpture and installation, as well as his quiet and lifelong preoccupation with ceramics". "In each of these forms, Maity translates into aesthetic propositions his memories of landscape and riverscape, the sensations he has absorbed during his journeys across India and the world, and his ceaseless excitement in the face of the world's changing moods and seasons," Hoskote said.

The artworks explore the various emotions and experiences the artist has garnered over the years — ranging from the spiritual ghats of Benaras to the tranquil lagoons of Venice, the colours of the Indian landscape to the grandeur and celebration of Indian festivals. "This exhibition is a culmination of years of quest, seeking to capture the essence of nature. The most important inspiration in my work is nature. It is nature that makes me want to paint. As an artist I observe, perceive and imagine — an image forms itself which I then express on canvas," Maity said.
