Uninvited guests leave Prayagraj residents overwhelmed

PRAYAGRAJ

As the Maha Kumbh 2025 draws millions of devotees to Prayagraj, the city's residents are facing a different kind of spiritual test—managing an unexpected flood of long-lost relatives. For many, the event has become less about faith and more about juggling overcrowded homes and stretched resources.

Neelam Gupta, a homemaker from Civil Lines, is feeling the pinch of hosting family after family. "I have 12 people staying in our three-bedroom apartment, and I've lost count of the cups of tea I've made," she said, trying to laugh it off. "Every day, someone asks if I can squeeze in just 'one more person'. It's like my home has turned into a dormitory!"

Neelam also shared a story about a surprise phone call. "My uncle from Varanasi, who hadn't spoken to me in over 15 years, suddenly called to ask if I could host his grandson's family. I didn't even know his grandson was old enough to have a family!"

The phenomenon isn't unique to Neelam. For Shweta Mukherjee, originally from Howrah but now living in Da-

For others, the situation is less humorous. Om Prakash Tiwari, a retired government employee in Alopibagh, said, "Relatives are showing up unannounced, saying they'll only stay for a day or two. A week later, they're still here, making full use of the free Wi-Fi and asking if I have Amazon Prime!"

Cong accuses Delhi govt of withholding Rs 618 crore under Ladli Yojana

PTI
NEW DELHI

Congress on Tuesday alleged that a total of 3.20 lakh beneficiaries have not been paid Rs 618 crore by the Delhi government under the "Ladli Yojana," launched by former Delhi Chief Minister Sheila Dikshit in 2008.

In its response, the Aam Aadmi Party said, "It's unfor-fortunate how the Congress is parroting BJP-manufactured lies -- using forged documents cooked up in BJP offices -- to hurl baseless accusations at the AAP."

The Ladli Yojana provides financial assistance in the form of term deposits: Rs 11,000 for hospital births, Rs 10,000 for home births, and Rs 5,000 at key milestones -- enrollment in classes one, two, six, nine, and 10.

Maken attacks AAP govt

POLL PANEL TO AAP CHIEF

'Give proof on Yamuna poisoning by 8 pm today'

NEW DELHI

Aam Aadmi Party chief Arvind Kejriwal has been asked to furnish proof backing his allegation that the BJP government in Haryana has poisoned the Yamuna water. The Election Commission, which asked him to produce evidence by 8 pm on Wednesday following a BJP complaint, said in its letter that it was a serious allegation that could create animosity between states and carried a provision of a three-year jail term.

Days ahead of the assembly election in Delhi, Kejriwal had claimed on Monday that the BJP was "mixing poison" in the city's water supply in an attempt to "create chaos... hoping the blame will fall" on his party's administration.

"The people of Delhi get drinking water from Haryana and Uttar Pradesh... but the Haryana government has mixed poison in the water coming to Delhi from the Yamuna and sent it here... it is only due to the vigilance of our Delhi Jal Board engineers that this water was stopped," he had said.

The claim, though, was contested by the Chief Engineer of the Jal Board who said it could lead to fear-mongering among the people.

The Election Commission, in its letter to the former Chief Minister, raised similar concerns.

"The electors tend to believe whatever is being said in public by their leaders and in that sense, the statement, if not true, affect the campaign discourse," the letter read.

The allegations are also "extremely serious in nature and unprecedented," the letter added.

"If true, this also has serious ramifications of creating enmity between regional groups, residents of neighbouring states, threat of law-and-order situation due to actual or perceived shortage of non-availability of water," the Commission wrote.

AAP settled Bangladeshi and Rohingya infiltrators: Yogi

Online Report
NEW DELHI

Uttar Pradesh chief minister Yogi Adityanath on Tuesday accused the ruling Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) government in Delhi of settling Bangladeshi and Rohingya in South Delhi's Okhla. "AAP committed 'sin' by settling Bangladeshi, Rohingya infiltrators in Okhla," PTI quoted Adityanath as saying at a rally in Delhi's Mangolpuri. Adityanath alleged that civic amenities and infrastructure had collapsed in Delhi and people from the city were settling in Noida and Ghaziabad -- both in Uttar Pradesh -- for better facilities. The chief minister slammed the Arvind Kejriwal-led AAP over pollution in Yamuna. "When I was coming from Ghaziabad to Delhi today, Yamuna ji, which was once a symbol of faith for all of us, there was a foul smell coming from there, it smelled like sewer. The people who have suffered the sins of the Aam Aadmi Party government in Delhi will be freed of their sins soon... There is only one way to get rid of this, a BJP government should be formed in Delhi as well," ANI quoted Adityanath as saying.

Poison in Yamuna: BJP slams Kejriwal's remark

Led by ruling BJP legislators and ministers, the party workers in Haryana held protests on Tuesday against Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) supremo Arvind Kejriwal for his remark that the BJP is "mixing poison in Yamuna", and burnt his effigies.

According to reports, the protests were held in several cities of the state including Panchkula, Karnal and Sonapat against Kejriwal for his remarks that BJP in Haryana was intentionally draining industrial waste into Yamuna and alleging that it is trying to kill people by "mixing" poison in the river.

In Panchkula, the BJP workers and MLAs were led by cabinet minister Vipul Goel and Ranbir Gangwa who also burnt an effigy of Kejriwal. Stating that BJP worshiped rivers, they alleged that Kejriwal was levelling baseless charges so as to hide his failures.

Kejriwal on Tuesday said he was not afraid of legal action and asserted he would not let people die in Delhi because of the 'dirty, poisonous water'.
